Blood in Breeland is played with an encounter deck built with all the cards from the following encounter sets:
The Prancing Pony Burns

New Staging Rules

When playing the scenario, players reveal encounter cards individually in player order during the Staging step of the Quest phase. Beginning with the first player, each player reveals 1 encounter card and resolves its staging before the next player reveals a card. If an encounter card has an effect that uses the word "you" then the encounter card is referring to the player who revealed the card. If the revealed encounter has the Surge keyword, the player who revealed that card reveals an additional encounter card. Encounter cards with the Doomed X keyword still affect each player.

Burning X

Burning X is a new keyword used in Blood in Breeland. When a card with Burning X is revealed from the encounter deck the player that revealed it must choose to either remove progress from the quest stage (but not the active location) or do damage to characters he controls equal to X. If there are no progress tokens on the quest stage the player must do damage to characters he controls instead.

Example: Burning Homes is revealed from the encounter deck. Brian looks at the Quest card and there are two progress tokens on it so he chooses to remove 1. If there had been no progress on the Quest he would have to do 1 damage to character he controls.

Peril

Peril is a new keyword found in The Lord of the Rings Saga Expansion and used here. When a player reveals an encounter card with the Peril keyword, he must resolve the staging of that card on his own without conferring with the other players. The other players cannot take any actions or trigger any responses during the resolution of that card's staging.
